[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

EASTERN DATES TO AUGUST 16

FORTRESS MONROE, August 16—Rear Admiral Lee this morning relieved Rear Admiral Porter of command of the North Atlantic fleet.

CHICAGO, August 16—The [illegible] evening says Frelinghuysen having declined the Mission to England, the President has tendered the appointment to Senator Trumbull, who declined, preferring to remain in the Senate.

Riot at Lyons.

LYONS, August 16—A riot occurred here yesterday arising from bad news from the army, which ended in a deplorable conflict between the people and police, during which one of the latter was killed and six wounded. The principal rioters were arrested.

Official Circular of English Neutrality.

NEW YORK, August 16—A London special says France has addressed a long circular to the English representatives on German [illegible] on neutrality being faithfully observed and equal facilities given both belligerents. The tone of the dispatch is moderate and conciliatory, but clearly the government does not intend to put any additional restrictions on supplies to the French Baltic fleet.

News from Paris.

PARIS, August 16, Evening—Official dispatches confirming the news of the great victory over the Prussians are impatiently awaited.

Important news has been received from Strasbourg. The Prussians there [illegible] are inclined to retire. Shots were exchanged. The people of Strasbourg are determined to defend the place to the last.

Proceedings in the Corps Legislatif to-day were exciting and important. A Deputy said that for three days the troops had been fighting, but no news had been received as to what had been accomplished.

Prussian Account of the Great Battle before Metz.

BERLIN, August 16—The following is made public:

Little Fort Henry was captured yesterday after a short bombardment by the [illegible] army corps. A large number of prisoners and six guns were captured.

BERLIN, August 16—The following dispatch from King William to the Queen is received:

HENRY, Aug 15—30 P M. Have just returned from the battle field near Metz. The advance of the 7th corps was attacked by the enemy, who were instantly reinforced from the fort. The 13th division and part of the 14th sustained the advance. The conflict was desperate, involving the entire line. The enemy was repulsed at all points and pursued to the glacis of the detached works near the fortress. The troops [illegible] the charge with incredible and admirable energy.

BERLIN, August 16—The following official dispatch dated 15th, 4 P. M., is just received and made public: Our advance finding themselves before Metz, [illegible] brigade were ordered to attack the rear guard of Bazaine's corps. A violent combat ensued. The [illegible] brigade advanced [illegible] immediately. The divisions of Generals Kinchbach and Wrangle [illegible] disputed driving the enemy at all points. Meanwhile the French General L'Admirault endeavored to flank the 1st corps, but was attacked by reserves which advanced under Gen Manteuffel. The enemy were splendidly repulsed and driven into the fort. Many were captured. Our troops advanced to Belle Croix, nearly within range of the [illegible].

Particulars of the Defeat of McMahon.

NEW YORK, August 16—The Herald's cable dispatch gives a letter from Gen. Becker, in command of the Zouaves of McMahon's corps. He did not receive a scratch, but of his 65 officers 47 were killed, wounded or missing. The soldiers fought like lions. We had 35,000 against 100,000. McMahon behaved splendidly and did all that any man could do, but had not men enough. We have but 500 or 600 Zouaves left.

Strength of the German Armies.

The following recapitulation is published:

Six hundred thousand German troops are now in France carrying needle guns. After them come as reserves the entire population of able bodied Germans. This class is proportioned to the army of the Saar, the army of the Rhine and the army of the South.

Prince Frederick Charles commands the army of the Rhine as leader of the center. On his right advancing southeast of Luxemburg is the first army of the Saar, under General Steinmetz. On the Prince's left, a second or southern army led by Prince Frederick William. Under the latter are 250,000 men, under Prince Frederick Charles 2[illegible],000 men, under General Steinmetz [illegible],000. Total [illegible],000 men. General Steinmetz has 50 battalions of infantry, [illegible] squadrons of horse and [illegible] battalions of artillery. Prince Frederick Charles has 1[illegible] battalions of infantry, [illegible] squadrons of horse and 11 batteries. The Crown Prince has 192 battalions of infantry, 104 squadrons of horse and 1[illegible]4 batteries.

The Prussians Forced Back.

A correspondent of the Daily News, writing from Luxemburg, says the result of Monday's battle was to force the Germans back. According to the last reliable advices the evacuation of Metz was stayed by the advance guard of the Crown Prince.

Another Great Battle.

Reports from Verdun state that a great battle is going on, but the silence of the French authorities confirm the rumors received here of a Prussian victory.

Great Consternation in Paris.

Great consternation was produced in Paris by the declaration of a state of siege in Algeria.

NEW YORK, August 16—A London special to the Times says: Our correspondent writes that the appearance of the field after the battle near Longueville stands thus: French loss 10,000 killed and wounded and 7,000 prisoners. The German loss is 7,500.

One Million Germans on French Soil.

The Tribune correspondent from Weissenburg says that fresh regiments are constantly passing through, and the Germans boast they have a million men on French soil.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

At the Congressional Convention in the Seventh Indiana District ex-Senator Hendricks made a speech in which he took back his New Orleans negro suffrage speech and took stronger grounds than ever against suffrage.

James Fisk Jr., has prohibited the sale of the New York Tribune on the [illegible] railway or on any steamers of the Narragansett Steamship Company, that journal having offended him by its persistent attacks on the Erie management.

Ex-Postmaster General Randall, whose residence is in Elmira, N. Y., is spoken of as the Democratic candidate for Congress from that District. Hamilton Ward, the present Congressman, and the district is largely Republican.

The Legislature to be elected this fall in New Jersey will have the election of a United States Senator in place of Mr Cattell, whose term expires next March. The campaign promises to be a lively one, but the News [illegible] seems to think there is no doubt of the success of the Republicans.

Johnny Cum, the drummer boy of Chickamauga, who was rejected at the recent examination at West Point, attends to all his duties during the day and is getting [illegible] determined not to fail at the next examination. It is stated that President Grant has determined to give the plucky little fellow another chance for West Point honors.

The New York Democrats [illegible] for whose especial benefit Congress passed the naturalization law, with its stringent provisions against fraudulent voting, are petitioning Governor Hoffman to call an extra session of the Legislature with a view to changing the [illegible] and penalties of the wise enactment of Congress threaten to very seriously interfere with the repeating and ballot box stuffing in the city, where the vote of an election district exceeds its population.

WAR NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

[illegible] Papers

A dispatch from Paris, August 5th says: [illegible] of the [illegible] who has just arrived in Paris from Forbach says he witnessed the entire destruction of Frossard's corps, and he claims to speak for 30,000 French soldiers who were cut to pieces by the fault of their leaders and who lamented with their last cry that they fell uselessly.

A dispatch from General Frossard, who was [illegible] between Metz and Nancy, printed in the [illegible], says: The Emperor was [illegible] to return to Paris by the home [illegible] and replied: "I will only return dead or victorious."

A correspondent of Le Temps describes an interview between the French Minister and Cardinal Antonelli on the 4th ult. The former handed Cardinal Antonelli a dispatch directing the evacuation of the Roman States by the French troops. Antonelli said: "I will communicate it to the Holy Father." "Then I may expect an answer in the evening," inquired the Minister. The Cardinal replied: "I shall receive you with pleasure in the evening."

The Marquis de Bonneville called on the Cardinal and the following brief conversation took place:

Marquis—What does his Holiness say?

Cardinal—He says: God will provide for me. May I never see French troops again.

Marquis—Is that all?

Cardinal—All.

The Journal Officiel, after describing in glowing terms the resources and patriotic spirit of the nation which has always been an obstacle to Prussian ambition, asks what other Power would like to see Prussia making the North Baltic sea a Prussian lake, including the smaller States and acquiring a dangerous preponderance of power. Favorable signs are already apparent that England, satisfied with the categorical assurance of France, hastens to render secure Northern France by causing Belgian neutrality to be respected. In Sweden, Norway and Denmark the popular feeling is with France, and the Emperor of Russia gives proofs of the best understanding with France. Austria and Italy are arming, and will cause embarrassment to Prussia. French diplomacy, not more idle than French arms, will be effective, and France will prove that she has not degenerated in 1870.

A special correspondent writes from Berlin on Saturday: The whole Prussian coast is in a state of perfect defense. I have witnessed excellent artillery practice on the iron clad A[illegible], which had left for the North Sea in the teeth of a French squadron and had reached port without seeing or being seen by French vessels which she passed while at Frederickshaven. The yacht G[illegible], the swiftest ship of the Prussian Navy, is out on the Baltic with orders to keep close to the French and watch their movements. She is in no danger of being caught. A French Corvette near Bornholm attempted to chase her, but gave it up after half an hour.

A correspondent telegraphs that Baron Gerolt, Prussian Minister at Washington, is in high spirits, having received numerous congratulations on Prussian victories. He trusts in the main to newspaper telegrams for his news as he receives but very few official dispatches from Berlin. The French Minister, on the contrary, is in receipt of many dispatches, but he declines to give any information for publication. He says they are of an official character and it would not be proper to give them publicity. The French Consul at Richmond has had so many applications from ex-Confederates who desire to enter the French army that he has been compelled to announce through the newspapers that he has no authority to accept their propositions.

CURRENT NOTES.

Census returns indicate that the population of New York city will be less than 900,000.

It is stated that the census of Chicago shows a population of 306,60[illegible]. The increase during two years has been 54,[illegible]51.

Pomeroy's New York Democrat has been sold to Gideon J. Tucker, an ex-surrogate of New York. The reputation of the new editor and the promises made in his salutatory will not be changed by the change of management.

Business on all Government cotton cases has been brought to a stand still by the changes deemed necessary to comply with the new law organizing the Department of Justice. There are 47 of these cases and the suits involve about $15,000,000.

President Grant may hereafter pardon O'Neil, but considering the sentiments expressed by the President at the time of the Fenian troubles he he has no immediate intention of doing so, and a prominent member of the Cabinet considers it in bad taste to press the matter at this time.

The New York Tribune has a table showing that of the 66,120 arrests in that city in the last ten years [illegible] were Irish, 3,684 Germans and all other foreigners, 5[illegible],051. Of the inmates of the city prisons and almshouse 40,000 were natives, 110,000 Irish and 18,000 German, as shown by the annual reports.

The San Francisco Bulletin has the most positive assurances that upon the official receipt of the guaranty of the subsidy already voted by the Australian and New Zealand Governments, Wm. Webb, the well known steamship builder and owner, will immediately put his ships in commission and establish a permanent line between that city and the New Zealand and Australian colonies. There will be no delay whatever on account of the pending question of a subsidy from the United States. The line established in good faith, the grant from the United States may be anticipated with reasonable certainty. But even if it should fail, which is not considered at all probable, the proprietors have sufficient ability to make the line a complete success.

Mr Smith's Self Praise.

It will be remembered that Congressman Smith [illegible] the statement that [illegible] had been [illegible] in the House by a [illegible] the land grant for the West Side [illegible] the Northern Pacific Railroad to [illegible]. The Eugene Journal thus [illegible] this statement:

In fact Mr Smith being a Democrat and able to get the support of only twelve of his whole party in the House was a positive disadvantage to the bill, a dead weight which it had to carry, and it would have passed much sooner if he had not been. The Republicans were overwhelmingly in the majority, and as they had to back the bill through with their own political strength, they said to its friends that they did not feel inclined to pass the first and only land grant of the session for a political opponent. And that was why it remained on the Speaker's table so long, and it never would have got through the body if Senator Williams and Corbett had not gone to prominent Republicans and made personal appeals in its behalf. Senator Williams spent the whole day on the floor of the House when the bill passed, and had ten times the influence of Mr Smith. Senator Corbett got General Butler, who had started in with the Democrats the day before to oppose the bill, to desist and take no further part in it, and induced other Massachusetts Republicans who were not at all inclined to favor Mr J. Smith or any other Democrat to support it. [illegible] That is how the bill came to pass. As Mr Pengra has been quoted as good authority by the Herald and the friends of Mr Smith both before and since the election, it may not be out of place to give his opinion on this subject as it was [illegible] expressed. While on the coming out from New York in May we showed Mr Pengra the manuscript of an open letter which Mr Gaston [illegible] and which was afterwards published in the OREGONIAN. That portion of the letter which spoke of Mr Smith's valuable services in connection with the passage of the West Side [illegible] and which was finally left out to the extreme disgust of the Herald, which harped about it for days, Mr Pengra said was not correct. He said Mr Smith was not able to get the bill through and that it was absolutely necessary to take it out of his hands and place it in charge of Fitch, of Nevada, before it could be passed.

The Road for Southern Oregon.

From the Salem Statesman

The question of most importance in choosing railroads for Oregon is this, what route can be the easiest constructed and will supply and aid the development of the most valuable portion of the country? This is the question which comes up most forcibly in connection with the proposed Oregon Branch of the Central Pacific railroad, called familiarly the Humboldt Branch. It seems to be positively the fact that which ever road is built will prevent the building of the other for many years to come as the country cannot support more than one road, if it can that, for the next twenty years. If the only object is to get through this valley and connect a seaport on the [illegible] with the Central Pacific then it is all that can be best performed by continuing the Oregon Branch direct from the [illegible] of the Humboldt to Eugene City, and an investigation of that route and its advantages as compared with the road through the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys is the object of this article.

We have sought information from all persons we have met who were familiar with either route, have received communications written on this subject, and have quite lately met with Hon. Jesse Applegate, who has been employed in making preliminary surveys of the Southern passes by which a railroad can cross the Cascades from Jackson county to the Klamath country. These sources offer us much valuable information bearing directly upon the matter in hand.

The proposed Humboldt route direct from Eugene commences by entering the mountains and continuing in them in a south-easterly direction until reaching the region of ashes and pummice stone. It cannot be supposed that the lands in the mountains offer great advantages for settlement and occupation, or that a railroad through them will materially aid the State's development. Coming down into the interior basin it would pass for sixty miles over the volcanic region above referred to, a region that is and ever will be a sterile, barren and worthless waste. Then for a hundred miles it bears south easterly skirting the Klamath marsh and thence to Goose Lake over much excellent agricultural land, but after all only touching the east edge of the valuable country of the Lakes, the pride of Southern and Middle Oregon.

The road meets its greatest difficulties in the Umpqua valley and in crossing over the Grave Creek hills to Rogue river. Its construction through Rogue river and even through the Cascade mountains is much less difficult, and we are surprised to learn that the road over the Cascades from Rogue river is not only easy of construction, but that at an elevation of about 5,000 feet the summit of the mountain presents an area of level land nearly extensive enough to form a good sized county, and that too of land the most valuable and productive. This region is known as the Dead Indian Country. It is becoming the favorite summer resort for the people in the valleys, who not only enjoy the pure and bracing mountain air, but also are delighted by the presence of the most romantic and remarkable mountain scenery. On the east bench of the mountain, descending about 500 feet, are found wide plateaux greedily sought for settlement, for this land on the mountain summit is attracting many settlers, and much enterprise. The descent on the east is only 1,000 feet. The interior basin wherein are situated the Klamath Lakes, being at an elevation of 4,000 feet above the sea level. This rich and extensive interior basin watered by magnificent lakes and possessing soil of the richest character is said to be as valuable to Oregon as is the Willamette valley, being capable of as great production and of sustaining as much population. The route of the railroad as viewed by Mr Applegate would pass between the upper and lower Klamath Lakes, crossing Link river which connects the two; then it passes on to the east shore of Rhett Lake, where it reaches the Oregon line.

The Humboldt route for one hundred miles or perhaps less runs through the eastern edge of this valuable district, but does not offer to develop it. The railroad to Rogue river will have to pass through the very heart of this valley region and directly between its lakes, which can be made to assist development greatly, for they are navigable, as are also the streams which flow into and out of them. So that the point where the road shall cross Link river must eventually become the site of a great interior city, to which shall come all the trade of a region as extensive as the Willamette valley. Above is the Upper Klamath Lake, navigable for forty miles, with the finest of sugar pine, abundant on the west shore, which can be cut and rafted down the rapids on Link, the only obstruction to that river, where it falls seventy feet in the course of one mile, offering unlimited water power, easily controlled because there is never over three feet variation between high and low water mark there. Sprague's river, which empties into the Upper Lake, is said to be navigable for sixty miles, and the stream which connects the marsh with the Upper Lake, Williamson's river, which is twelve miles long, can also be navigated, and moderate labor judiciously expended will drain the marsh and make it one of the best pieces of land on the coast. Fremont discovered the marsh in his expedition of [illegible] and '44, and says it can easily be reduced to cultivation and become a paradise. A canal would connect it with a railroad and effect this result. Lower Klamath, which lies partly in California, could send steamers to the railroad, and Rhett Lake, lying to the east of it, and not connected save by a slough which empties into Link river in time of overflow, and this slough could be deepened to bring it also into communication.

So when we compare the benefits to result, we find that the route advocated and insisted on by the enemies of Senator Williams only skirts the edge of this great and valuable region, while the road from Humboldt to Rogue river would develop every portion of it, and will traverse a magnificent region capable of settlement and cultivation in crossing the [illegible]. In addition to this it will be a [illegible] to the beautiful and extensive valleys of Umpqua and Rogue river.

The more the subject is considered the easier it [illegible] why the Hon J. S. Smith [illegible] to support Senator Williams. [illegible] Oregon will not support any man who [illegible]

The Democratic Dilemma

[illegible] the Herald [illegible] either Democrats [illegible] the election of a Senator [illegible] without [illegible] before the June [illegible] the railway question [illegible] of all purely political or party issues, and in this portion of the State, where the matter is most agitated, they were thoroughly routed upon the issue of their own choosing. A like fate would have overtaken them in the southern counties had the election turned on the agitation of the question there. By their course in the campaign before the June election they virtually admitted that the railroad question was far more important to the people of Oregon than any contention about party issues. The railroad problem as it existed then exists now. Its aspects have not changed. If it was a proper subject to be carried into politics then, it has the same character still. If it was proper to consider it then with reference to the election of a Senator, why may it not be considered still in the same view? Was it pertinent then, and is it impertinent now? During the last week of the June campaign the Herald and its coadjutors here divested the contest of all political or party issues and made the fight on railway questions alone. They thus admitted that politics were secondary in importance to railway interests. They invited the co-operation of everybody without distinction of party on the propositions they advocated, and on the other hand, by thus introducing a new question and giving it prominence over all the usual party issues, they virtually and practically absolved their own political friends from their former party allegiance. The consequence was that many heretofore staunch Democrats voted with the Republicans.

Senator Williams had introduced a measure which the people of Oregon, now that they are fully acquainted with its scope and object, entirely approve. The fight was made against him here not on account of his political record, but solely on account of his agency in introducing this railway measure. That was the whole burden of the song of the opposition. They labored to defeat him because of his advocacy of a measure which the people of Oregon now approve.

But though they succeeded in getting a majority in the Legislature, they cannot now dismiss the railroad question. They introduced it in the contest for Senator and they will not be able to eliminate it. They gave it the priority over party questions, they exalted it to a matter of the first importance, and now it confronts them for solution. To add to their embarrassment, they have put themselves in such a position that it is out of their power to solve it in a way that will be satisfactory to the people of the State. They have made war on the interests of the southern counties, and are not able now to make it right with those counties by helping them to a railroad. They cannot elect any man Senator who will be able to secure the measure which Williams has proposed. Thanks to Democratic efforts, the southern counties in all probability will go without a railroad. By running this business into politics they have got it into a nice muddle. We shall see now who will be able to serve the State in these important matters; we shall see what man the Democracy can produce who will be able to contend successfully in the National Legislature for the interests of Southern Oregon against the united Pacific coast delegation.

It is mainly to Senator Williams' efforts that the State owes its present fair prospects for railway development. Without him the grant on which a railroad is now being rapidly built through the Wallamet valley would have been lost, and that road delayed for years. He it was also who was mainly instrumental in securing the west side and Astoria grant. He has inaugurated a project to insure a railroad for Southern Oregon, he has carried it through the Senate, but his term is now about to expire, the measure has many enemies, and when he leaves the Senate it will be supplanted by a rival project which will cut Southern Oregon off. This is the situation, and the Democrat who succeeds Senator Williams cannot mend it.

An article on the Wasco county contested election cases appeared in the OREGONIAN a few days ago in the absence of the editor from duty, in which a position is taken to which this paper does not wish to be committed. In that article it was, in substance, admitted that a person may lawfully vote in any precinct in his county for members of the Legislature, and Judge Whitten is indirectly made to support this position. As for the position itself, the most that can be said in its favor is that it is a mooted question, with the weight of opinion against it. As for Judge Whitten, it is only necessary to say that he did not touch the question. It was not within his province. Each branch of the Legislature determines for itself all questions relating to the election of its own members. The provision of the Constitution prescribing where the voter shall vote is so explicit as to leave little or no doubt with us as to the fact that one cannot lawfully vote for members of the Legislature outside of the precinct where he resides. Such manifestly was the intention in framing that instrument. We need not go into a discussion of the question now; our only purpose at this time is to state what we think to be the correct position in regard to it.

The first of a line of iron steamers to ply directly between St. Louis and Liverpool is now being built at Pittsburgh, to run in connection with the grain barges of the Upper Mississippi. An iron steamer is being built at Cincinnati for the Red river [illegible] in Louisiana. This is the first iron vessel that has been built exclusively to navigate Western rivers.

A day or two ago the Herald had a very laudatory article on Mr. James D. Fay. It bragged on his backbone and highly commended his political integrity. What's the matter now? Is the Herald afraid that Mr. Fay means to [illegible] mischief in the party camp, taking this course to [illegible] him and to make him work with [illegible] in the party harness?

There must be a mistake somewhere. Secretary Boutwell says that the public debt has been reduced $156,138,784 during the present Administration. A Democratic orator in Indiana in a recent speech said that not a dollar of the public debt has been paid and will not be for the next fifty years. A slight difference of opinion.

National Securities and Interest

[illegible] possible at once to fund our [illegible] at [illegible] rate [illegible] agent [illegible] the [illegible] all was all that was necessary to attain that object have been seriously disappointed in their expectations. It is true the European war [illegible] unfavorable [illegible] on our [illegible] when [illegible] announcing again [illegible] per [illegible] American [illegible] will [illegible] London Economist says: "Of course American credit is not really affected, but it must [illegible] suffer in common with other [illegible]. If the war continues any length of time, the prospect of funding the American debt at a [illegible] lower rate of interest with two such borrowers as France and Germany in the market must be postponed for a pretty long period."

As for money in our own country, it finds so many profitable schemes of investment consequent upon the amazing progress of material development here, to admit of very extensive investments in Government securities. As a general rule, those who have money can do better than to invest it even in our present six per cent bonds. It will be seen therefore that it is not lack of faith in our Government that prevents the funding at a low rate of interest. In Europe, other nations are in [illegible] American capital can [illegible] at a [illegible] rate of interest.

The War News

The general drift of the dispatches would indicate that there has been almost continued fighting on the line of the Moselle for several days. Reports are so meagre and contradictory that it is not easy to form an idea of results. On the whole, however, it seems that the French are being gradually pressed back, and from this fact the advantage is still manifestly with the Germans. It would seem that there has been no general battle. The fighting has evidently occurred between portions of the opposing armies in different localities, not between large masses of troops concentrated on a single field. There is clearly much maneuvering on both sides for advantages of position, and the fighting that has taken place is probably the collision of divisions and detached corps engaged in the execution of movements to carry out a general plan. The drift of the tide is, however, plainly adverse to France. Even without the stinging defeat of a few days ago, it would be humiliating to France for her soil to be made the theater of war. A few days will tell whether the affairs of the French are irretrievable or not.

According to some of the late cable dispatches, there is now springing up in Europe an idea of the possibility of danger from the great strength and preponderance of Germany as developed in the present war. If France cannot cope with Germany, what nation can? Already the question seems to be presenting itself: Will the equilibrium and peace of Europe be secure hereafter from German violation? The greatest power, of course, is the one that is always dreaded.

WAR NOTES

The Imperial Printer at Paris has sent forward a miniature printing office to be used during the war. It will be with the Emperor's headquarters and will promulgate intelligence of victories at his Majesty's discretion. It hasn't done any business yet.

Says the Chicago Republican: The throne of Napoleon cannot survive a series of disasters, for the people already manifest discontent at the prospect of a long struggle, in which everything is periled and no gain possible. The war opened with a masquerade, and is likely to close with a funeral.

In France 62 out of the principal seaports are connected by railroads with Paris, viz: Twenty-one ports on the Channel, 25 on the Atlantic and 16 on the Mediterranean. Out of 104 fortified places 83 are in railroad communication, and of the 181 military depots, 167 are similarly connected.

A Berlin letter in the Paris Temps says: "France prepares herself for a most grievous disappointment if she expects to find in Germany one tenth of the support that her officials promise. The day the French army crosses the frontier it will only find enemies. Such is the naked truth."

The French papers are very courteous to Denmark. One says: "One evening the news of Waterloo arrived in Copenhagen. During the general excitement it caused, the Danish marines smashed the illuminations at the Russian and English embassies; on the morrow Denmark lost Sweden. It is a noble and generous nation. It stands before Russia, England, Austria and Prussia like an infant hero fighting with a Hercules."

The Duke de Mortemar writes as follows to the French Minister of War: "Monsieur le Ministre—I still use the spurs I wore in the First Dragoons at the battle of Jena, but I could no longer support bivouacs. Nevertheless, were the events of the war against Prussia to require it, I could still set an example of defense upon a rampart. Meanwhile, if the Government thinks of opening a subscription for a patriotic gift, I bind myself immediately to pay in 100,000 francs."

A Jacksonville paper says that on the 5th inst. Mrs. H. York of Applegate, assisted by a dog belonging to Mr. York, killed a large brown bear near her residence, while her husband was absent.

Mayor Chenoweth calls the attention of the Corvallis council to the necessity of making some effort to prevent the river from so changing its channel as to leave that place out in the cold.

The Statesman of Wednesday says: Yesterday afternoon a reception was held at the house of Mr. J. [illegible], at which many of the members of the M. E. Church and some others attended for the purpose of welcoming the distinguished Bishop who has visited Oregon to preside at the Annual Conference of that church. The subject of a new church was discussed with a view to raising the amount of $30,000 to carry the object into effect. The Bishop urged a bold move and energetic action, making the very sensible remark that Salem, as the seat of Government for Oregon and the most important point in the State in some accounts for Methodism, should be represented by suitable church edifices. There is good prospect for success in the undertaking.

The Michigan Legislature have agreed to an amendment to the Constitution providing that the Legislature may make provision for the payment by counties, townships and municipalities of all bonds or other obligations heretofore issued in aid of railroads, such bonds to be paid by such county, township or municipality issuing them, and not in any case by the State—the question to be submitted to each municipality. No provision is made for granting aid to railroads in the future.

From San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, August 17.—The French misled by the emphatic declarations of a great French victory placarded on the Chronicle bulletin board on Montgomery street last evening became wild with excitement and kept up rejoicing until a late hour of the morning. A full examination of the dispatches to the Associated Press of the latest dates leads to the conclusion that the report of a victory is not well authenticated and subject to serious doubt. The indignant crowd tore the board down and smashed it. A feeling of depression has ensued with the French, and further reports are awaited with feverish anxiety.

THURSDAY MORNING, A[illegible] 18[illegible]

CITY.

RIVERSIDE H[illegible] A[illegible] — The [illegible] aggregate [illegible] ready [illegible] the [illegible] They are dependent [illegible] of their investment upon the [illegible] many individual [illegible] shareholders [illegible] population [illegible] The Riverside [illegible] one hundred and [illegible] situated just south [illegible] twenty-acres [illegible] the river [illegible] near [illegible] about one mile from the [illegible] at [illegible] land. The tract has forty [illegible] half a mile in one strip [illegible] along the Oregon and [illegible] length and [illegible] half a mile in length, the two [illegible] being connected near the middle by two [illegible] between them,) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H [illegible] 20[illegible] feet square (with [illegible] angles and 80 fraction streets running [illegible] the river front. The shares number [illegible] two more than the whole number 600 [illegible] worth $70 per share. It will be seen [illegible] that a share thus represents very [illegible] one hundred [illegible] [illegible] for all practical purposes a share [illegible] 1[illegible]0 feet. The 80 fractions [illegible] be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association shareholders in proportion to the [illegible] of shares held. When all shares are taken, and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales after deducting the [illegible] price of shares or lots to be divided [illegible] the whole number of shares equally [illegible]. Thus if a person wants a particular lot or block [illegible] pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen therefore that everything is co-operative and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property by some chance should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself, but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity for the last year [illegible], it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first instalment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is every foot of it of the richest loam soil, and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist. Ferry & Russell, office in rear of St. Charles Hotel, Morrison street, are agents for the Association for the sale of shares.

FERRY AT [illegible] — It will be recollected that some time ago there was trouble between Mr. Stephens of East Portland and Mr. Knott concerning the East Portland ferry landing. Mr. Stephens, owning the land fronting on the street, commenced driving piles directly across the ferry slip to the line of the street, thus closing the slip so that there was scarcely more than room for the ferry boat to crowd in and rendering the landing of the boat difficult at all times, and nearly impossible when there was strong wind. Upon the application of the ferry owners a temporary injunction was issued to restrain Mr. Stephens from driving piles, since when no piles have been driven, but the landing was already so far closed that rather than take the trouble and risks of getting into the narrow opening, the proprietors of the boat have been landing for two or three weeks at the sand beach above the powder house. This place is about one block above the old bridge by which the high ground of East Portland is reached from the river, and the intervening ground is private property liable at any time to be inclosed, thus destroying this landing place also. In view of this, some of the people of East Portland, feeling the need of securing a permanent roadway to the ferry and a ferry landing which cannot be fenced across, have been moving in the matter of building a bridge from the high land at Dr. Hawthorne's place along the street to the bank of the river at the present ferry landing, and a petition has been presented to the County Court asking aid of the county. It is proposed by the petitioners that they will raise half the necessary funds, the county to pay the balance. Of course the parties interested in property along the old bridge [illegible] against any such action, and the people of the whole burg seem divided [illegible] the matter. It is represented that [illegible] to the difficulty of landing [illegible] the old bridge is so insecure that it must be rebuilt or repaired at great expense. This expense must be borne by the county [illegible] parties interested may [illegible] It becomes therefore [illegible] difficulty for the County [illegible] We are, however, that a competent gentleman has been authorized and has undertaken [illegible] premises and to furnish accurate estimates [illegible] the cost of either bridge, upon whose report [illegible] probably act. The rivalry among property owners and the ferry interest may [illegible] lead [illegible] to the construction of a new bridge [illegible] thorough repairing of the old one.

FERRY [illegible] Senator-elect David Powell and several other gentlemen went out the other day [illegible] a few miles beyond Sandy on a [illegible] expedition. After they had reached the [illegible] a fire broke out in the woods [illegible] and [illegible] so much [illegible] their way [illegible] the whole party had two or three days [illegible] at last accounts [illegible] chance [illegible] pay.

CITY.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.—The association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception the Portland Homestead Association the pioneer of institution of that kind in the city it may be well enough to state what are its purposes and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the true sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands based upon the co-operation of many individuals as shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad half a mile in length the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 90 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 444, being only two more than the whole number of whole lots worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents very nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 8 fractional lots. For all practical purposes a share represents a lot of 50 by 100 feet. The 90 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association shareholders, money is for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales after deducting the original price of shares or lots to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block and is willing to pay $100 or $300 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen therefore that everything is co-operative and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless property, by some chance, should depreciate in value below the first actual cost. Whether this is likely to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself by observing the steady and unprecedented advance in real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two it seems hardly possible for prices to go back.

The Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against ... of shares. No person is allowed to hold more than the number of shares representing four blocks, or twenty four lots and votes determining the operations of the Association are ... in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments or they may pay quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first installment, being in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full with the assessments thereon, the holder is entitled to his certificate and proportion of all the profits accrued from sales. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary who ... per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

... of the tract lying along the river is ... nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front ... but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam and well adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a ... each shareholder, if he choose, may get a good title to as many lots as his shares may ..., or he may continue his interest undivided with the Association while the organization is in existence. Ferry & Russell office in rear of St Charles Hotel, Morrison street are agents for the Association for the sale of shares.

FERRY AND BRIDGE MUDDLE.—It will be recollected that some time ago there was trouble between Mr Stephens of East Portland, and Mr ..., concerning the East Portland ferry landing. Mr Stephens owning the land fronting on the street, commenced driving piles directly across the slip to the line of the street, thus closing it up so that there was scarcely more than room for the ferry boat to crowd in, and rendering the landing of the boat difficult at all times and nearly ... when there was strong wind. Upon ... of the ferry owners a temporary injunction was issued to restrain Mr Stephens from driving piles, since when no piles have been driven, but the landing was already so far closed ... than take the trouble and risks of going into the narrow opening the proprietors of the boat have been landing for two or three weeks at the sand beach above the powder house. The place is about one block above the old landing at which the high ground of East Portland ... from the river and the intervening ... is private property liable at any time to be fenced, thus destroying this landing place. In view of this some of the people of East Portland, feeling the need of securing a permanent ... way to the ferry and a ferry landing that cannot be fenced across, have been moving in the matter of building a bridge from the high ground at Dr Hawthorne's place along the street to the bank of the river at the present ferry landing and a petition has been presented to the County Court asking aid of the county. It is proposed by the ... that they will raise half the ... funds, the county to pay the balance. It seems the parties interested in property along the old bridge remonstrate against any such action, and the people of the whole burg seem to be divided on the matter. It is represented that, in addition to the difficulty of landing at the old place the old bridge is an ... that it must be rebuilt or repaired at ... expense. This expense must be borne by ... unless private parties interested may voluntarily assume some part of it. It becomes ... a question of some difficulty for the ... to decide. We learn however that ... has been authorized and has undertaken to survey the premises and to furnish an estimate of the cost of either bridge ... report the court will probably act ... among property owners and the ferry ... may yet lead not only to the construction of a new bridge but to the thorough repairing of the old one.

HUNTING OUT.—Our State Senator elect David ... and several other gentlemen went out the other day to a small prairie a few miles beyond ... on a hunting expedition. RETURNED.—Capt. Geo A Pease of the P T Co., who has been absent about nine weeks on a trip to the Atlantic States arrived home last evening by way of Boise and the Columbia river. COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

REGULAR MEETING WEDNESDAY AUG ... TH

Present His Honor Mayor ... Smith and Councilmen Bills Besser Congle Cree Hallock Lewis and Moffett

MESSAGE FROM THE MAYOR

A message was received from His Honor the Mayor in regard to the employment of special policemen under the recent resolution of the Council stating that it was found impossible to find twelve competent men willing to serve as ... f ... pay offered ($60) per month and ... that he had approved the employment of eight men with a suggestion ... them ... he would recommend the payment of $90 per month. He asked the Council to consider the proposition. The message was referred to the Committee on Health and Police with instructions to report an ordinance.

PETITIONS

The petitions of several parties for permits to improve certain streets were received and permits were granted.

W H Brackett asked permission to use a part of Jefferson street for building purposes—granted under the usual restrictions.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The Chief Engineer and the Committee on Fire and Water reported that W H Brackett contractor on No 4's engine house had completed his contract and that there is due him $1 000. Report placed on file.

The Committee on Streets to whom was referred the bill of Geo Luyer ay for street cleaning reported that the bill was rendered under a contract with the Street Commissioner for cleaning streets in front of public buildings and offices and recommended its payment. Report placed on file.

The Committee on Health and Police to whom were referred two ordinances concerning vagrants reported a substitute and recommended its passage.

SPECIAL REPORT ON BUSINESS IN THE RECORDER'S COURT

The special committee to whom were referred the message of the Mayor and accompanying communication from the City Attorney submitted the following report which was adopted:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Portland: Gentlemen. The Special Committee to whom was referred the communications of His Honor the Mayor and the City Attorney relative to the Police Department together with the Recorder's Court beg leave to report that on examination of that subject we concur in the opinion expressed in both communications that the interest of the city of Portland is neglected in those departments of the city government.

We find the revenue derived through the existing Recorder's Court constantly diminishing notwithstanding our population is increasing, and judging from the constant and persistent demand for an increased police force the commission of crime is also on the increase.

Your Committee are of the opinion that there is no necessity for any conflict between the county and State authorities and the city government. There is really none in fact. The true cause is the misinterpretation on the part of the Recorder and Marshal of the duties they owe to the city of Portland—the power to which they owe their official positions.

In the opinion of your Committee the ordinances now in force for the punishment of crimes and misdemeanors are amply sufficient if properly administered to maintain good order and quiet in the city and would yield a revenue directly from the violators of city laws that would go far toward paying the expenses of that department of the city government.

The practice of the Recorder and Marshal in ignoring the ordinances of the city providing for the punishment of crimes and misdemeanors and making State suits of them, to the prejudice of the city, is not in the opinion of your Committee the fault of the laws that permits them to act as Justices of the Peace and Constable in the State Courts but the evil lies in making city cases subordinate to State cases and a selfish interpretation of their duties a greediness to make money in which the interest of the city is overlooked.

The city charter provides that the Recorder shall have two thirds of the fees earned by him in the Recorder's Court. The county allows him two thirds of his fees hence his temptation.

The Marshal and his Deputies receive stated salaries from the city, which are ample to acquire the services of good men. When acting as Constables they receive in addition to their salaries all the fees earned by them from the county—hence the temptation.

In the opinion of your Committee, the Recorder should have stated hours for the disposal of business in the Recorder's Court. He being an officer of the city, he should be required to dispose of business in the Recorder's Court before entering into business pertaining to the office of Justice of the Peace. This would work no hardship to any party, there being several Justices of the Peace in the city, before whom cases requiring prompt action could be tried.

We also recommend that the Recorder be notified that it is not convenient or proper for the city to furnish him an office for any other purposes than those pertaining to the business of the Recorder's Court.

We also recommend that the Marshal and his Deputies be required, where arrest is made if a city ordinance has been violated to enter the same on his entry book and if cognizant of the facts make his complaint on behalf of the city and should he or they enter such as a State case or not in any manner to the prejudice of the city he or they shall be deemed guilty of negligence in office.

FIRE AT CANYON CITY

THE ENTIRE VILLAGE BURNED—LOSS $250 000—100 ... LEFT HOMELESS

A telegram from the Dalles yesterday morning announced the destruction of the entire town of Canyon City Grant county by fire. We learn through the kindness of Mr Hundlach who arrived down last evening the following particulars.

The fire originated at about 1 o'clock on Friday morning the 12th inst in an eating house called ... Restaurant, and in a short time all that part of the town was in flames. No wind was blowing when the fire started but the flames seemed to create a ... which ... drove the ... the main street the whole length of ... rapidly that there was little time anywhere for efforts to save goods. Before 12 M the entire town except four residences was in ashes. At first those who did not have what they call fire proof cellars removed their goods to the middle of the street and there they were afterwards burned. A few of the cellars resisted the fire but were so heated that the goods in them were ruined or greatly damaged. Many of the cellars were burned out the contents being as effectually destroyed as the goods stored above ground.

About one hundred and fifty people are left houseless and many of them totally destitute. Except from buildings on the outskirts very little household stuff or anything else was saved. The remains of two Chinamen were found in the ruins after the fire had burned out; no other lives reported lost.

The destruction of property was great—estimated at not less than $250 000 on which the aggregate of insurance did not probably exceed $30 000.

The Jacksonville Sentinel publishes the names and gives an account of the doings of some young thieves in that place and advises their parents to take care of them.

The Rockport (Ind) Democrat speaks of certain members of its party as scabs in human shape who have hung to the Indiana Democracy too long.

The Old Cradle.

BY FREDERICK LOCKER.

And this was your Cradle? Why, surely, my Jenny,
Such cosy dimensions go clearly to show
You were an exceedingly small picaninny
Some nineteen or twenty short summers ago.

Your baby-days flowed in a much-troubled channel;
I see you, as then, in your impotent strife,
A tight little bundle of wailing and flannel,
Perplexed with the newly-found fardel of life.

To hint at an infantine frailty's a scandal;
Let bygones be bygones, and somebody knows
It was bliss such a baby to dance and to dandle,
Your cheeks were so velvet, so rosy your toes.

Ay, here is your Cradle, and Hope, at times lonely,
With [illegible] I know,
They guard [illegible]
Some nineteen or twenty short summers ago.

It is Hope gilds the future, Love welcomes it smiling;
Thus wags the old world, therefore stay not to ask,
"My future bids fair, is my future beguiling?"
If masked, still it pleases—then raise not the mask.

Is Life a poor coil some would gladly be doffing?
He is riding post haste who their wrongs will adjust;
For at most 'tis a footstep from cradle to coffin—
From a spoonful of pap to a mouthful of dust.

Then smile, as your future is smiling, my Jenny!
I see you, except for those infantine woes,
Little changed since you were but a small pickaninny,
Your cheeks were so velvet, so rosy your toes!

Ay, here is your Cradle, much, much to my liking,
Though nineteen or twenty long winters have sped;
But, hark! as I'm talking there's six o'clock striking,
It is time Jenny's baby should be in its bed.

—Every Saturday.

Hidden Causes of the International Strife

[Berlin (July 28) Cor. of London Times.]

No one who remembers Berlin this month four years ago can fail to notice the immense difference between the state of public opinion then and now. In 1866 there was a general disinclination, from a sentiment of relationship and old alliances, to go to war with Austria; at present scarce a person is to be found who does not long for the commencement of hostilities to avenge former injuries and recent affronts. However little a German may know of the history of his race there are few unaware of the circumstances from which French ascendency first arose. When, in the cause of Protestantism, Germany, 250 years ago, engaged in the most sanguinary civil war recorded in history, France stepped in and preyed upon the nation divided against itself. When, listening to the Jesuit, a Popish Kaiser led his Spanish, Italian, Hungarian and Slavonian subjects against the Protestants in his German provinces and in those of his princely feudatories, France availed herself of the opportunity, and tore province after province from the body of the dilapidated realm. The disintegration of the German Empire, consequent upon this internal conflict has now lasted 260 years. Nominally re-united at the close of the war Germany has remained a divided country ever since. Broken up into a number of virtually independent territories, each strong enough to prevent joint action, yet, with few exceptions too weak to resist foreign attack, it became a football for its neighbors. Some appropriated portions of its territory; others were content with the gratification of humiliating so large yet so helpless a commonwealth. Once the most populous, the most powerful State of the continent, it ceased to have influence upon the course of events, a voice in the council of nations. Impotent in the sphere of politics, it found great difficulty even in developing trade and obtaining commercial treaties from more favored nations; and such was its dependence on foreign influence in matters peculiarly domestic that on more occasions than one Austria was able to stay the progress of its constitutional life, while Russia, in a notorious instance, forbade all attempts at reunion. It is true Prussia, the largest of the German States, has been a respectable power for the last century. Still, she was too much hampered by the jealousy of her petty allies to improve this sorry state of things. Hence the opposition, more or less openly expressed, of the other Continental Powers, when, four years ago, Prussia at last undertook to cut the Gordian knot, eject the all but foreign Austria, who had originally caused the split, and, amid the applause of patriotic Germans, unite the disjecta membra of the nation into a compact whole. Hence more particularly, the resistance of France, whose vanity was sorely wounded by a change which grievously interfered with the delightful consciousness so long enjoyed by her of being stronger than any of the adjacent nations.

If France defeated divided Germany in the days of Napoleon I., was she now to permit an innovation which would forever prevent a recurrence of that glorious success? If the Napoleonic campaigns never brought her any tangible advantage, and ultimately resulted in defeat for herself, did she not for a while experience the intoxicating sensation of victory? And what matters a rout, if preceded by ever so shortlived an ascendency? It is a remarkable fact, and one curiously illustrating the dominant tendency of the French national character, that, although in reality France has of late derived small practical advantage from the division of Germany, the mere idea that her reviving neighbor was no longer at her mercy so nettled her as to render the present attack possible. For four long years it has been the subject of conversation among all ranks of Parisian society. But the lessons of the past and contemporary history have not been thrown away upon the Germans; they have realized the nature of their position and are yearning for a change that shall emancipate them forever. The eruption must have come some day. By dint of continual teasing and taunting there has been formed in the German mind a latent substratum of danger; by the events of the last few weeks this underground volcano, restless for several years, but hitherto content with emitting every now and then puffs of smoke, has been suddenly set in motion. It is now pouring forth its stream of liquid fire. If religion originally divided the Germans, patriotism has reunited them; if Catholic Austria kept them asunder the sword of Protestant Prussia has forced out the wedge; if the centralized power of other neighbors formerly obstructed all attempts to gather the scattered forces of the country under one head, a sufficient stride on the road to unity was accomplished in 1866 to give a fair chance of completing the distance in the struggle before the door. This latter contingency will be materially promoted by the appointment of the Crown Prince of Prussia to the command of the South German armies. It is a high honor conferred upon the Southerners, and will rouse them to do their best; it is a politic measure, which, by placing one so much superior in rank above them, will remove the petty jealousies which usually divide the Southern generals, and it is a political move in the highest sense of the term, as it naturally paves the way for a closer reunion of North and South, should the issue of the war admit of it.

REPORTS FROM FRANKFORT. The London Times of July 21st, contains the following:

The advices from Frankfort join in the enthusiasm displayed by the entire population, and express extreme satisfaction that in the South there is even yet more ardor than in Prussia proper. "Travellers," it is said, "coming from Munich and Stuttgart report a unanimity of feeling common to all classes of the population. In the newly annexed provinces, too, Hanover and Hesse, as well as at Frankfort, people are ready for all sacrifices, and volunteers come forward from every side." The universities will close just as in 1813. With regard to the influence of the war on the United States it is mentioned that they will sustain a loss of 200,000 emigrants per annum "coupled with a fall of fifteen per cent in their bonds, the impossibility of getting money for their railroads, the extinction of their large tobacco trade with Bremen and their cotton trade with Hamburg, and the cessation of all business between Germany and 7,000,000 of Germans in America." There is, it is added, nothing but misery to report from the Bourse. Distrust is universal. In the offices there is a dead silence, as almost all the clerks, being young men, have been called to military service. "We shall have hard times at all events, until people have recovered from the first shock and have settled the large liabilities entered into when peace was relied upon."

It has just been discovered that Gen. De Rodas, who mismanages the Spanish army in Cuba, is a partisan of the Bourbons. He desires to see the elevation of Isabella's son to the Spanish throne. De Roda's habit of exaggeration was well known, but it was not suspected that he was also a traitor.

Small and Great Nationalities

[From the Chicago Republican.]

The Roman Empire, at the period of its greatest expansion, embraced almost all the world known to early history. Despotic in form, the government still allowed a liberty to its subjects as that age was capable of comprehending. Its greatest scholars, poets, orators and statesmen date from the same period. The ancient world was most free, and humanity was making its greatest progress, about the time that Rome was at the zenith of its power. With its disruption and final overthrow, an intellectual and moral darkness closed in upon mankind, and human progress was not only arrested but turned backward.

[illegible] in fragments [illegible] great nation. The nationalities that rose from the ruins were for centuries incomparably inferior to the old parent, and some of them have not even yet reached the elevation from which they fell, with all the advances of modern civilization. The broken pieces were self-repellant, and the monstrous doctrine of divine right in kings, and hereditary estates in governments was an effectual bar to all real progress. The history of all this period is one of senseless wars, waged for no justifiable purpose, with no great ideas of national unity—a blank page in which ignorance, superstition and a mean ambition alternately struggled for the mastery, while the people at large were the mere blind instruments of each other's destruction. They sowed in hate, and reaped in tears.

If the Greeks are excepted, small nationalities have been the curse of Europe. Little kingdoms, ruled by little kings, too feeble to protect themselves, and not wise enough to unite in a great nationality, have been the sport and play things of despotism. Their annals are but a repetition of weakness and folly, from age to age—of governments without wisdom or power, and a people without hope. It was not until the French Revolution and the first Napoleon shook up these miniature dwarfs, and rattled the dry bones of feudalism out of them, that they began a career of positive and national improvement, and learned to combine for their own safety.

With the single exception named, small nations have never made any conspicuous or considerable mark in the world's real progress. Their whole energies are wasted in defending themselves from aggressions. They have no great aims—no noble purposes—no ideas that are not small or groveling. Cemented together in larger bodies, they at once enter on a higher and grander career. It is for this that the unification of Germany is an object that is dear to thoughtful minds everywhere. It is a positive gain to the world, and however rigorous the present Government may be, once remove the outside pressure of fear, and the German people would at once assert a universal freedom.

If the Latin races would unite as one people, and the Germans and Scandinavians be allowed to do the same, so that only three or four great nations occupied Europe, the millions of men now kept in arms would be dispensed with, and it would be impossible to predict the advance of the several populations in everything that would improve and better the human race. How long the silly pride of kings, and the low jealousies of the nationalities as to prevent such a consummation, it would be unsafe to forecast; but the tendency toward unification for fifty years past, has been strong and decided.

A Drunken Man's Duel.

We give the subjoined from the White Pine News of the 6th.

We have a sensation. It is no less than a duel, in which both parties will fight on the imaginary field of honor with bloodless determination. The circumstances of the appeal to the code are these: About break of dawn, yesterday morning, Marshal Dumars was aroused out of his sleep in the City Hall by a noise in the adjoining room. He thought that it emanated from a number of persons, but on proceeding there he found a single individual, with black ringlets around his eyes, expostulating with an imaginary audience. The Marshal asked the man how he came there, and he answered:

"They brought me."

"Who?"

"Why, the police."

Dumar thought sure enough the fellow had been arrested; but on further questioning, found that he was laboring under delirium, imagined that two men—particularly a Swansea medico—were following him with six-shooters. He had been pursued by these phantoms from his home at Swansea, and sought refuge in the City Hall. He was locked up, and medical assistance called in. During the forenoon whole armies of doctors were thrusting revolvers into his cell. Finally about three o'clock in the afternoon, he told the Marshal he had the thing fixed now, and that he was going to fight a duel. His friends had been there and the preliminaries to a hostile meeting with his medical enemy had been arranged. They were to fight at ten paces with six-shooters, exhaust all the chambers as they advanced, and the one who received the fewest bullets was to be the victor. They would not, however, fight for several days, and it was possible that the weapons might be changed to Chassepots and Needle-guns. In that event it would require time to practice. But, at any rate, he wished the Marshal to select the ground. Would he do it? Of course he would. As soon, therefore, as the ground has been chosen and weapons are determined on, the sanguinary combat will be in order. We hear of a number of cases of liquor dementia in the vicinity of Swansea, and they are accounted for from the prevalence of too much lack of employment there since the discontinuance of work in several establishments.

The Effect of War upon the Money Markets.

[From the N. Y. Shipping List.]

We obtain, from our latest files of European papers, a very fair understanding of the effect upon the finances of the announcement of war between France and Prussia, which the Cable very imperfectly outlined. The London Economist states that, during seven days of the panic which commenced on the 4th ult., the value of French rentes fell £300,000,000; that of the British consols, £8,315,000; that of Italian bonds, £5,315,000; that of the United States loans, £12,600,000, and the total loss of value in the National securities sold in London, was no less than £76,295,000, or not far from £400,000,000, without including the stocks of other countries, of which no sales are made in London. In railway stocks a similar depression took place, and, in those of eleven prominent English lines alone, there was a fall in value of more than $12,000,000. As was natural to suppose, so heavy a depreciation of securities has led to numerous heavy failures, with the consequence of a rapid rise in the Bank of England rate. While the war continues, the money markets must remain in a feverish condition, from which American securities (some $1,400,000,000, it is estimated, are held abroad,) will be likely to suffer a further depreciation. Every failure in England affects the United States, directly or indirectly, and impairs the want of confidence, since the credits of the two countries are very much mixed up. Leading financiers do not look for a wholesale return of bonds, but such an event may happen, and if it does, the country will be very apt to be drained of gold, with a material advance in the premium. Such a turn of affairs would neutralize any advantages we might reap from the carrying trade or the high prices of food supplies. But more disastrous to the general prosperity of the country than anything else, would be the element of uncertainty which would cripple enterprises, and change the legitimate, healthy business of communities, into feverish speculation, as demoralizing as it is unproductive. It may turn out that our foreign debt is not the unmixed advantage which it has been the fashion to represent it.

The Treasury Department has prepared a full statement of the total amounts due each Indian tribe, under the provisions of the Indian Appropriation Bill. This money is intended for school purposes, farming utensils, seeds and plants, houses and barns, clothing, food, tobacco, etc. It was the non payment of it, previously, according to treaty, which led to some of the Indian outbreaks of last year. For the incidental expenses of the Indian Bureau in California, Oregon and Nevada, $10,000 is set aside. The total appropriation for all the Indian tribes is $5,701,000, exclusive of the regular appropriation for the expenses of the Central Bureau at Washington. The Indian tribes receive interest on trust funds, for their bonds, annuities, etc., not in these figures, alone amounting to about $2,000,000. The whole cost of the Indian establishment, including agents, traders, services of troops, etc., can be placed in round figures at $10,000,000 per annum. There are 126 tribes through the country, besides the roving bands.

Markets by Telegraph.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 17.—FLOUR—Standard brands [illegible] Extra at $5 [illegible] and superfine at $4 87 [illegible]; interior brands California range at $4 75 [illegible] for superfine and $5 [illegible] for Extra. The export demand is a little better, some lots having been taken during the week for Central America and Australia, also for China a partial cargo.

WHEAT—Favorable accounts of the harvest in France and England, received in the early part of the week, together with lower rates at Liverpool, have exerted a depressing influence on the market. On the 15th inst. exporters were freely paying $1 75, the next day offer but $1 70 on the spot, and $1 72½ afloat for good shipping. Farmers are holding back supplies in hope of better prices in the future.

C. H. MYERS,
AGENT FOR
RUMSEY & CO.,
Seneca Falls, New York,
THE LARGEST
Pump Manufactory
IN THE WORLD.

"The Catalogue of RUMSEY & CO., of Seneca Falls, embraces over 200 different styles and sizes of Lift and Force Pumps. They are now turning out 1,500 Pumps per week, which range in price from $5 00 to $400, employing 150 hands in the business. John A. Rumsey has recently patented an improved galvanized non corrosive cast iron Pump, which is safe from rust. An improved Hand Fire Engine of great efficiency, is also on their list. The machinery in Rumsey & Co.'s Factory is of the most efficient kind, much of it being of their own invention, and is driven by an unfailing water power. They are now building a new factory, 84x142 feet, 4 stories. When that is completed they will increase their working force to 250 hands. The business carried on by this firm was established by Rumsey about 30 years ago."—Iron Age, New York. d14dtf

HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that it is the safest [illegible] method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests in Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs the riders in a case. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have concluded [illegible] to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.
